

The Generation Ex Scholarship Essay Contest

Entry Deadline: August 20, 2004

Grand Prize: $1,500 Scholarship

To Enter:

The Generation Ex Scholarship Essay Contest is open to high school seniors and registered college students whose parents are divorced. First, read Generation Ex by Jen Abbas. Then, in no more than 1,000 words, describe your experience as related to one of the effects outlined in Generation Ex.

Mail Essays to:

Generation Ex Scholarship Essay Contest
PO Box 888372
Grand Rapids, MI 49588-8372

Judging:

Essays will be judged on both style and content. Judges will look for writing that is clear, articulate and logically organized.

The Rules:

- Entrant must be a high school senior or registered college student whose parents are divorced.
- To avoid disqualification, each page of your essay must include: your name, address and phone number; your e-mail address (if available); the name and address of your high school or college; your age at the time of your parents divorce(s); your current age and current grade level.
 - Essay must be postmarked no later than August 20, 2004.
 - Decisions of the judges are final.
- Winner will be notified on or around September 20, 2004.
- The winning essay will be posted on www.JenAbbas.com.

For complete scholarship rules, log on to www.jenabbas.com

The Generation Ex Scholarship Essay Contest

Entry Deadline: August 20, 2004

Grand Prize: $1,500 Scholarship

To Enter:

The Generation Ex Scholarship Essay Contest is open to high school seniors and registered college students whose parents are divorced. First, read Generation Ex by Jen Abbas. Then, in no more than 1,000 words, describe your experience as related to one of the effects outlined in Generation Ex.

Mail Essays to:

Generation Ex Scholarship Essay Contest
PO Box 888372
Grand Rapids, MI 49588-8372

Judging:

Essays will be judged on both style and content. Judges will look for writing that is clear, articulate and logically organized.

The Rules:

- Entrant must be a high school senior or registered college student whose parents are divorced.
- To avoid disqualification, each page of your essay must include: your name, address and phone number; your e-mail address (if available); the name and address of your high school or college; your age at the time of your parents divorce(s); your current age and current grade level.
 - Essay must be postmarked no later than August 20, 2004.
 - Decisions of the judges are final.
- Winner will be notified on or around September 20, 2004.
- The winning essay will be posted on www.JenAbbas.com.

For complete scholarship rules, log on to www.jenabbas.com